I am a Full Stack Developer with experience in multiple development technologies, building complete applications that connect clean user interfaces with reliable backend logic. I am recognized for my commitment to continuous learning and constant improvement. I have worked on both individual and team-based projects using Agile methodologies such as SCRUM, strengthening my skills in collaboration, effective communication, and problem-solving. I am looking to join an inspiring team where I can continue growing professionally and contributing to meaningful projects.

PROJECTS

I've developed a wide range of applications—e-commerce platforms, expense-splitting tools with PDF generation, real-time visual experiences using camera input, content-streaming platforms, API-driven apps, mobile applications, and admin dashboards. Many of these projects required handling user authentication, state management, media streaming, real-time interactions, and role-based features for both users and administrators.

I value clean code, maintainable architecture, and practical problem-solving. Whether working on client projects, interactive marketplaces, or experimental UI concepts, I focus on delivering solutions that are functional, scalable, and enjoyable to use. I'm comfortable working across the entire stack and adapting to different technologies depending on the project's needs.
